Aplam and Pancho have real existence. They are often seen hovering around the infinite corridor at MIT, and even in their contained existence they charm all passers-by with their over-enthusiastic wag. However in this essay Aplam and Pancho are computational ideas or objects far separated from their real canine beings. They are embedded with explicit behavioral traits of their real counterparts. The world that they are placed in is also an artificial complex object made up of Place ideas such as 'Studio', 'Kilian Court' or 'Chicago'. In such a world the concept of space-time are also not physical phenomena but simulated or conceptual artifacts. Aplam and Pancho hovers around this world as they interface with other computational ideas such as Human or Food, and based on their embedded intelligence react. These reactions are reported as Story ideas that make up the rest of the Essay idea. The Essay is captured as a computational process and every time it is run a new Essay is formed based on Aplam and Pancho's encounters.

~ It was a sunny Cambridge day. Pancho teleported himself to Room 9-268. It was moderately noisy. It is easy to get scratched and fed in 9-268. Pancho says 'Its a dogs life...'. Pancho says grrrr I hate your smell to Aplam. Aplam sniffs for food on ground. Aplam eats leftover tidbits from floor. Pancho hopped to Kilian Court. It was moderately cold. It is easy to gallop in the soft, plentiful grass in Kilian Court. Squirrels! Squirrels! I am going after them. Pancho rolls over the green... and compulsively digs mud near tree trunks. Pancho is elated and runs around Kilian Court barking joyously. Aplam says 'Its a dogs life...'. Aplam surveys the vast landscape of Serengeti and takes shelter under a low brush. Dazed by the heat, mirage-like silhouettes of his Primal Brethren arise at the horizon. Aplam says pet me to Biraja. Aplam starts wagging in delight. Pancho hopped to Room 9-268. It was moderately stuffy. If there are two dogs in this room at the same time, there is trouble. Pancho says 'Its a dogs life...'. Pancho lies down contentedly and refuses to move. Pancho walked down to Student Center. It was very noisy. The Student Center is almost always full of people and has very strong smells wafting here and there. Pancho sniffs for food on ground. Pancho eats leftover tidbits from floor. Pancho gets confused by numerous persons and smells. Pancho gets tied up outside the bench. He tries to guilt-trip Sadia by giving that orphaned look. Didnt work. Pancho says pet me to Sadia. Sadia replies back saying, sweet pooch are you enjoying your petting. Pancho walked down to Charles River. It was moderately windy. The river is very good to swim in if you are large enough that the tide doesn't just carry you downstream. Pancho jumps into water. Pancho says play with me to Sadia. Aplam hopped to Room 9-268. It was moderately stuffy. There are often territorial battles occurring in this room. Pancho hopped to Under Alex's desk. It was moderately stuffy. Pancho tries his best hack - pees on Alex's hard drive trying to dampen his Alex's digital life. Pancho searches for left-over food. Aplam ran to Student Center. It was very noisy. The noises in the Student Center, along with the smells, are unnerving. Aplam sniffs for food on ground. Aplam eats leftover tidbits from floor. Pancho says pet me to Jenn. Pancho says play with me to Duchs. Jenn replies back saying, sweet pooch are you enjoying your petting. Pancho hopped to Sadia's Backyard. It was very cold. There are always the same two squirrels and one cat hovering near Sadia's Backyard. Pancho barks at squirrels and the neighbor's cat. Pancho basks in pool of sunlight, following it across the backyard. Pancho lays down contentedly. Pancho says pet me to Garett. Aplam sits and gazes philosophically at cars passing by. Pancho teleported himself to Sadia's Car. It was very cold. Pancho sits on drivers lap. Pancho says play with me to Kaus. Pancho says play with me to Jimmy. Pancho says pet me to Nancy. Pancho says pet me to Garett. Kaus replies back saying, too much work dude not now. Pancho starts wagging in delight. Aplam hopped to Charles
